

Milagros Kennett, is Architect/Project Manager, Risk Management Series, Mitigation Division, Building and Technology at FEMA/Department of Homeland Security. She has more than 15 years of experience on projects in Latin America, Asia, the Middle East, Europe, and the United States. Ms. Kennett's main focus has been on natural disaster mitigation; building security; planning and implementation of development programs; and management of pilot programs with national and local governments, and non-governmental organizations. She was formerly Deputy Director of the Ministry of Public Works in the Dominican Republic and served as Dean of the School of Architecture and Engineering at the Centro de Estudios Tecnológicos. Ms. Kennett has been awarded and conducted large research projects for the U.S. National Science Foundation. Currently and is the staff Architect of the Building Science Branch of the U.S. Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). She is the project officer of the Risk Management Series which includes a series of publications devoted to how to mitigate potential terrorist attacks against buildings.

Ms. Kennett received a degree in architecture and urban design from the Universidad Autónoma de Santo Domingo and a Master of Arts degree in international development with a major in urban economics from American University in Washington, D.C.